

FREES HIS MIND.

Sam Jones, the Alleged Preacher, Talks in New York.

HIS OPINION OF SOME CITIZENS

Of New York Expressed in Language More Forceful and Vulgar than is Customarily Used by Preachers.
He Prefers Greasy Cards and a Black Bottle to Stock Exchange Doings.
Advising a Resort to Mob Force on Staten Island.

New York, Aug. 18.—The wiry, black-haired little Sam Jones talked for nearly two hours on New York politics and stock brokers to-day. The subject for the day was advertised as "Conscience, Reason, and God, with a few remarks on New York politicians and Wall street thrown in."

Before starting his sermon Jones read a set of resolutions, which were drawn up by a committee appointed after the morning services, protesting against the opening of the canteen, for the selling of beer at cost, on the grounds at Sailor's Snug Harbor. Mr. Jones stated that if no other way could be devised to get rid of the proposed saloon, the residents of Staten Island must rise up in their might and abolish it, no matter what the consequences.

A hymn was then sung, after which Mr. Jones got up and began his sermon.
"Every man of us has a conscience," he said, "and every woman, too. Those who try to dodge their consciences and go in an opposite direction from which it would lead them are fools, and will come to grief. Don't our consciences tell us what's right and what's wrong? Of course they do, and yet we have people among us who do wrong things every day and yet try to convince their conscience that they're doing right. But they can't fool themselves; no, indeed, they can't."

Mr. Jones went on in this strain for some time, but finally branched off and began to talk about gamblers.

"Is gambling a crime?" he said.
"People don't seem to think so, but I say that it is. Why don't they think so? It is because those whom we term the best in our land are gamblers. Wall street gentlemen, for instance. Refined gamblers; that's the proper definition for those people. Men who virtually rob each other day after day. Men who, after speculating for a week in Wall street, go to church on Sunday, and getting on their knees, ask the Lord, not to forgive them, but to show mercy to other sinners. They don't ask for mercy themselves, and they won't get any.
They are gamblers despite the fact that the public in general believe them engaged in a legitimate business. If we must have gamblers, I would rather see things done in the old style; two men at a table, playing with a deck of greasy cards, with a black bottle between them.
Those men are entitled to a hundred times more respect and consideration than our Wall street friends who are deacons and elders in their respective churches. I tell you, friends, that if all the real criminals in New York city got similar treatment, poor little Sing Sing would have to have 2,000 more square miles added to it to hold them all."

Mr. Jones stopped at this point for a moment to mop his brow and take a drink of water and then resumed. "How are we going to stop gambling? It will be a terrible job to do it, for as long as a pack of cards is in existence the evil remains. It can never be done as long as those sinful affairs known as progressive euchre parties are allowed to go on. What a farce to call them progressive euchre parties, any way. They are gambling parties, nothing else, and are doing more to ruin our young men and women than anything else I know of. It is sickening to see the way our church people attend these affairs. Deacons and elders who never miss a Sunday at church, gather in the parlors of one of the parishioners and for two and three hours at a time sweat and struggle for prizes. But if any one should ask them to sit down and play a penny ante game of poker they would raise their hands in holy horror."

"Ah! this is a sad age when just because a man pays his bills and wears good clothes he is not a sinner. But he is a sinner just the same, and while his good clothes and good credit will carry him any distance, his character won't take him ten feet. It's the poor that have to suffer every time. Why, down South if a bank cashier ships with all the bank's funds and then a few months later returns and settles for 30 cents on the dollar, he is still Col. So-and-so or Major So-and-so, and is respected and revered by all his friends as if nothing had happened. But if a poor devil of a nigger steals a chicken he is hauled up to the Court House, arraigned before a stern looking judge, and made to listen while a half dozen lawyers talk about the decline of the country owing to chicken thieves. Then he is dragged off to jail to serve a long term for aiding in the downfall of his country. That's the way the aristocracy do down South."

"Up here the niggers are more independent and won't be trodden on, so for villainous people turn on poor John Chinaman and get square on him. It is tiresome to see the talk which has been created over two poor unfortunate Mongolians who have been banished to a disease-infested island for life. They say they have the leprosy. If they have it isn't their fault, and they shouldn't be abused and denounced on all hands as they have been. Why, their disease is nothing to the terrible disease called sin which exists in all corners of New York city."

At this a party of Staten Island Methodists, who occupied the right gallery, began to clap their hands.
"That'll do," said Jones; "you Staten Island people needn't applaud. God knows, Staten Island is bad enough.
The only difference is that in New York sin is high-cock-a-lorum, while on Staten Island it is low-cock-a-lorum."

This provoked a great deal of laughter and the Staten Islanders subsided. The speaker then went on and denounced the liquor traffic and politicians.
"Every politician has a saloon and every saloon is open on Sunday," he said. "The Sabbath is not recognized at all and sin reigns supreme. Ah, to see it like my State, Georgia. There every open saloon means a man in jail.
Every engine that goes along means an engineer and fireman to be tried the next day. There in that glorious State the Sabbath is recognized as it should be throughout the world." Mr. Jones said a good many other things and told numerous funny stories. He ended up his discourse by talking about record and judgment.

"Brethren, you cannot escape judgment," he said, "every little thing which you have done, every swear word which you have uttered will have to be accounted for. There is a record of everything up above, and some people are going to be surprised when they see all the bad things they have done.
You'd better get out, brothers and sisters, and repent or you'll be sorry. You can't escape that record, and you needn't try. I know a man who tried to get away from a record once, but he didn't, as you shall see. His name, I won't mention, but he was a lawyer, and he got into a habit of going out every night and not getting home until early in the morning. His wife always asked him where he had been, and he invariably replied that he had been at the office copying. But that woman was no fool.

One night just as he was leaving the house she slapped a pedometer into his vest pocket. It was about two o'clock the next morning when he returned.
His wife was awake, and her first words were: "John, where have you been?"
"Down at the office copying, my dear Maria," he replied. "John, you come here," she said. John came, and, reaching her, she took the pedometer from his pocket, opened it, and found the needle at seventeen miles. "No, John," she said, "where have you been?" He tried to tell her that he had spent the whole evening at the office, but she shut him up and then showed him the pedometer.
He finally acknowledged that he had been playing pool and drinking all night, and had made trips around the table and to and from the bar, aggregating seventeen miles. That was one of the times when the record was right, and so it will be when on the judgment day we all have our sins thrown up to us. You must wash yourself white, friends, and then stay that way.
But don't make a mistake and whitewash yourselves. Some people don't know the difference. A whitewashed person has to get a new coat every few days, and might as well remain dirty.
But a person washed white remains so forever. Brothers and sisters wash yourselves white."

The 6,000 people who had paid ten cents apiece to listen to Mr. Jones clapped their hands and left the auditorium.

ST. JOSEPH'S SETTLEMENT.

BELLAIRE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

The new official classification, No. 9, to take effect September 1, has created quite a furore among the bottle men.
The classification on less than carload shipments has been raised one class, from third to second, and the minimum carload weight raised from 20,000 to 24-000 pounds. This practically cuts the manufacturers in this vicinity clear out of the eastern markets.

At the annual meeting of the Enterprise Window Glass Company a cash dividend of ten per cent was declared.
The company has a large surplus in reserve. It will not start its works here at present, two factories being in operation in the gas country. Five of the board of directors are property owners here, and are anxious to start here again.

Some of the members of the Standard boiler and bridge works, becoming dissatisfied, sold out their stock to one or two others of the firm. The company is a joint stock concern and is doing very well.
